OIL JURY TESTS
TITLES TO LAND

Question of Validity of Campbell Claims in Montana Is Considered

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C.—The question of the validity of the oil land permits held by Gordon Campbell, indicted in Montana with Senator Wheeler, is under consideration here as a result of testimony given in the grand jury investigation at Great Falls and the resulting senate inquiry.

Witnesses before the senate committee have testified that the land involved amounts to 10,000 acres, which is in excess of the limit under the law for any one person holding in any one state. It also has been testified that some of the land acquired by the Campbell interests was carried under dummy names.

No decision has been reached, but it is possible that department of justice officials and the interior department who have been in consultation on the subject may make an announcement shortly.

AMERICA URGES
ACCORD TO END

Emergency Foreign Policy Conference Considers Cable to Paris, Berlin

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C.—The emergency foreign policy conference at a meeting here Wednesday took up for formal approval the text of a cablegram addressed to the people of France and Germany expressing a desire to see effected an "honorable, enduring and equitable settlement of the differences between France and Germany" not only for "unselfish motives" but also because Europe's economic instability affects America's prosperity.

After declaring equal friendship for Germany and France, the message expresses concern lest on the eve of election both in Germany and France, Germany may "turn away from liberal and enlightened leadership" and thus help to divide still further the two countries. It adds that the promise of an equitable adjustment lies "in the liberal elements of the two countries" and says Americans cannot refrain from expressing the hopes that "the electorate of both nations may be wise enough to entrust the negotiations to this end to those whose faith is in common understanding and mutual good will, rather than in force."

The cablegram has been signed, among others, by Senators Frazier, North Dakota; Ladd, North Dakota; Howell, Nebraska; Johnson, Minnesota; and Wheeler, Montana, and Representatives Beck, Nelson and Voigt, Wisconsin; Keller and Weigand, Minnesota; Evans, Montana; Howard, Nebraska; and Sinclair, North Dakota.

OFFICIALS CALLED IN COBBAN INQUIRY

Zimmerman Attorneys Question Legality of Civil Service Memberships

Madison—Governor Blaine, members of the state civil service commission, Elmer S. Hall, conservation commissioner and former secretary of the state, and A. E. Garey, secretary of the civil service commission will be called to testify in the hearing on dismissal of Alex J. Cobban, automobile license registration clerk, it appeared certain Wednesday. Late Tuesday attorneys for secretary of State Zimmerman obtained subpoenas from the Dane County circuit court for the officials. The action followed announcement Tuesday by the civil service commission that it would reserve the right to determine whether witnesses would be permitted to testify. Among other things Zimmerman's attorneys declare they probably will bring up the question of legality of membership of the civil service commission claiming that all three members are Republicans whereas the state law requires that not more than two members shall be of one political party. The officials also are expected to be questioned regarding the political angles of the Cobban case.

Indiana Governor Draws Heaviest Term Ever Given by Court, and Leaves for Atlanta Wednesday.

By Associated Press
Indianapolis—Warren T. McCray, who retired Wednesday as governor of Indiana, was sentenced in federal court to serve ten years in the Atlanta Federal prison upon the charge of using the mails in furtherance of a scheme to defraud. In addition he was fined $10,000. He was found guilty Monday and presented his resignation as governor Tuesday, effective at 10 A. M. Wednesday.

McCray, according to present plans, was to be taken to Atlanta, Ga., at 3:20 o'clock Wednesday afternoon along with several other prisoners who have been sentenced from the federal court.

McCray, appearing fresh and rested after a night in the Marion-co jail, heard his sentence—as heavy as ever was passed on a man appearing before Judge Anderson—with scarcely a tremor. The same iron nerve that had characterized his actions throughout the last year's court trials and bankruptcy hearings held with him.

At the adjournment of court, the former governor walked briskly to the United States marshal's rooms, with eyes straight ahead and no show of emotion.

JUDGE ISSUES REBUKE
The former governor was found guilty on 13 counts of using the mails to defraud. The maximum sentence of five years, imprisonment and $10,000 fine was imposed on each count. The sentence as given, however, provides that McCray shall serve the first five years and pay a fine of $1,000 for the first count. The imprisonment sentences on the remaining counts will be served concurrently but the fines will be cumulative until the sum of $10,000 is reached.

Prior to passing sentence Judge Anderson scathingly denounced McCray for repeated forgeries. He declared that if the prisoner "lived to be as old as Methuselah, I could not mete out enough punishment." The judge also scored the state courts for not taking action against McCray. He declared McCray had violated the statutes hundreds of times and had committed perjury on the witness stand.

NAVY IS DEFICIENT,
U. S. ADMIRAL STATES

Commander in Chief Claims Lack of Funds Hampers Development

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C.—Serious deficiencies in the United States fighting fleet mobilized in southern waters last winter were reported by Admiral Robert E. Coontz, commander-in-chief in his official account to the navy department of what was demonstrated during the maneuvers.

Excerpts from the report obtained Wednesday at the navy department, indicate that the fleet was seriously embarrassed by the low speed of the auxiliary ships; that ships generally had not been kept "properly repaired" because of lack of appropriations; that 12 of the older battleships needed modernization of machinery, elevation of turret guns and equipment with anti-aircraft defenses; and that "submarine operations were worst of all combatants ships taking part in the maneuvers." "All submarines are so deficient in speed as to be of small use for fleet work except by accident of position," Admiral Coontz reported. "Considering the poor material, the work of the personnel aboard these submarines is, in many cases, most admirable and even heroic."

SENATE ACCEPTS
MELLON TAX CUT

By Associated Press
Washington, D. C.—Secretary Mellon's proposal for a 25 per cent reduction in the tax on earned incomes was agreed upon Wednesday by the senate with modifications. The maximum amount of income on which the reduction could be applied was cut to $10,000 from the $20,000 allowed by the house. All incomes of $5,000 or less, however, would be considered earned for purposes of the reduction.

Madison, Not
Green Bay, To Get Meeting

Madison will be host to the next district convention of Rotary International according to the action taken early in the Wednesday morning session of the conference. The invitation which was extended by a Green Bay Rotarian had to be withdrawn later in the day, leaving the conference without an invitation for the next conference. The choice of city was left to the district governor, but Madison came to the rescue.

SOUTH MOURNS
VETERAN CHIEF OF GRAY RANKS

General Julian S. Carr of Civil War Fame Succumbs in Chicago

Atlanta, Ga.—The southland mourned Wednesday for General Julian S. Carr, leader of the famous "Gray Ranks," prominent North Carolina financier and cotton mill operator, who died Tuesday night in Chicago.

Grief-stricken, he died about fittingly to pay him a final tribute. It is expected that arrangements soon will be made to honor his memory—possibly on the day he is laid to rest—but now the territory south of the Mason-Dixon line only can bow its head in silence stunned by the news of his sudden death.

His last public appearance was in Raleigh, N. C., several weeks ago when he attended the Democratic state convention. Then he was in robust health and chatted gaily with many of his former comrades in gray as always was his delight, of battles they fought 60 years ago.

General Carr was closely identified with the life of Durham, N. C., his home, from the time it was but a tiny village until his death. He was extremely active and energetic until his last illness, often walking between his home and his office in the business district.

Soon after the war he entered the tobacco manufacturing business, in which he was said to have made millions. Later he purchased extensive holdings in the textile industry, among which is now the Durham Hosiery Mills Co., the largest enterprise of its kind in the world, and a chain of other mills in North Carolina. He took an active part in organizing virtually all of Durham's banks and when he died was president of one of the largest financial institutions there.

79 BODIES FOUND
IN WRECKED MINE

Thirty Two Victims Still Uncounted for in Ruins of Explosion

Wheeling, W. Va.—The bodies of 79 victims of the Benwood mine explosion Monday have been located by rescue workers, who, after digging their way through a fall of rock and sludge to No. 5 entry, found nothing but death. At day Wednesday a rescue crew reported that it had conquered the fall and the high water in the mine and had found 53 bodies there. The bodies showed that flames swept that part of the mine and that the deadly gases had finished the work of the fire. Thirty-two of the 111 miners entombed by the blast are still missing.

BECK RENEWS CHARGE

Washington, D. C.—Representative Beck, Republican, Wisconsin, renewed his charge Wednesday before the house committee on expenditures on the agricultural department of maladministration of the packers and stock yards act. Many farmers are willing to testify, he said, that administration of the act has been harmful to them.

Delegates to National Convention Interested in Principles

Organization Begins Campaign to Educate Members in Government

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1924 by the Post Pub. Co.
Buffalo, N. Y.—The strangest national convention of the year 1924 is being held here. Alongside of it the Republican national convention at Cleveland and the Democratic national convention in New York would afford a remarkable contrast.

For here are gathered delegates who are interested in principles and not parties. In the two major conventions will be assembled delegates interested in men and political parties.

There is no partisanship in the National League of Women Voters.

Not is there any attempt to pass judgment on existing controversies in congress. But the background of these controversies, the principles which are fundamental in them, are being studied here. And the whole convention may be described as a university extension course.

It is by far the most intelligent effort that has yet been made in America to preach democracy in practical terms and educate the voter to the use of the ballot.

The objective of the League of Women Voters this year is to urge 75 per cent of the eligible women voters of the nation to go to the polls. The league itself will not tell them how to

BRITISH BUDGET
PLEASES PARTIES

Press of All Political Convictions Lauds Chancellor's Measure

London—London newspapers of all shades of political conviction believe that the budget introduced in the house Tuesday by Chancellor of the Exchequer Phillip Snowden, will be popular. It is generally admitted that the budget is so favorable to all interests that if the government could not obtain a majority in the house, it would be returned in possession of real power, instead of merely holding office through the sufferance of the other parties.

The budget has won the golden opinion of the Liberals on whose favor the administration mainly depends for its continuance in office. The Conservatives do not conceal their surprise at the chancellor's moderation, but they regard this as intended for propaganda purposes to disarm the suspicions of anti-Socialists.

The masses of the people approve the cheapening of foods and drinks, especially the big reduction in the tea duty.

The budget proposals met with a generally favorable reception on the stock exchanges Wednesday.

Propose Lake Trip
To International
Rotary Conference

Steamer Will Be Chartered to Take Delegates to Toronto If 150 to 175 Are Willing to Go.

A novel form of transportation is proposed by Willard N. Parker, district governor of the Tenth district of Rotary International in convention here Tuesday and Wednesday, for attendance at international convention which will take place at Toronto, Ontario, Canada, this summer.

The plan suggested includes a trip by steamer from Milwaukee to the convention city with the provision that the boat will be hotel quarters for the Tenth district delegates and their wives during their stay at the convention.

Henry Petran of Milwaukee, a member of the district transportation committee, sketched the plan proposed by Mr. Parker. An endeavor will be made to secure reservations from 200 Rotarians of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan. A straw vote was to be taken on Wednesday among the delegates to ascertain how many would agree. If between 150 and 175 members could be enlisted for the plan, the project would be undertaken, since the women members of steamer party would fill up the quota of passengers necessary to charter a boat.

200 PASSENGERS
A steamer of the Goodrich company will be engaged for the trip. It will have accommodations enough for 200 passengers. Delegates who are accompanied by their wives would have the privilege of a state-room, which would mean no extra charge. The boat would start at Milwaukee and stop at Sheboygan, Manitowish, Sturgeon Bay, Green Bay and Escanaba.

The fare for round trip passage, eating and sleeping including lodging and breakfast on the boat during the convention, will be $125, Mr. Petran said. This mode of travel he said is desirable since it is not harassed by summer heat, road dust and the smell of gasoline. He guaranteed no one would become seasick.

A musical program preceded the afternoon session. Two violin selections, Berceuse and Valse Serenade, were rendered by Percy Pullmiller, Appleton, both his own compositions, and were much appreciated. Carl McKee of Appleton, led in community singing.

"Hello, Michigan, Hello Wisconsin," the Tenth district conference was joined in enthusiastically by the delegates under the leadership of Anthony Olinger of Waukesha, composer of the song.

Several addresses were delivered Tuesday afternoon, an account of which is found elsewhere in this newspaper.

SEEK GIRL TO CLEAR
GERM POISON STORY

Husband Sought to Escape Another Woman, He Tells Police Officials

By Associated Press
White Plains, N. Y.—Authorities investigating the poisoning of Mrs. Clarence O. Barling, who charges her husband with feeding her arsenic and disease germs, are searching for Miss Mildred Beam, 27, daughter of a Marshfield, Me., sea captain, who with her mother last Monday left their home in Elizabeth, N. J., where the young woman was teaching school.

District Attorney Rowland was issued a subpoena for Miss Beam. Tuesday said he had no intention of arresting her. He merely wants to talk with her. He said she would be an important witness at the trial.

Barling testified before the grand jury that his desire to escape from another woman led to the poisoning of his wife. He hoped, the authorities said he told them, to make his wife go all she would agree to go to California with him, to recuperate. Barling, who is still in jail, admitted before the grand jury, according to minutes made public by the district attorney, that he had put poison germs in his wife's food.

TRUSTY ESCAPES
IN HOSPITAL CAR

Confessed Incendiary Is Object of Statewide Search Since Tuesday

By Associated Press
Wausau—Police throughout the state are searching for Charles Cramer of Madison, a confessed incendiary, who escaped from the hospital for criminally insane here Tuesday.

Cramer was a trusty and assigned to drive an automobile for Dr. J. F. Brown, head of the hospital. Tuesday Cramer stepped into the machine and drove away.

During the time he was under observation in the hospital, Cramer did not appear violent and was assigned as an automobile driver. He was considered one of the most faithful trusties about the institution.

Authorities here say Cramer was headed south following his escape Tuesday but the trail was lost when he struck a well traveled highway and a confused series of reports of his whereabouts has left the hunt a statewide affair.

It was not believed that the man could have gotten out of the state and police in Madison and vicinity are keeping an especially close watch as it is thought he was headed in that direction.

Unless he travelled the better roads, his progress will be slow, officials said, due to the recent rains which have caused many of the unpaved roads to be almost impassable conditions.

UNIVERSITY PRESIDENT
TALKS TO KNOX STUDENTS

By Associated Press
Galesburg, Ill.—President Bruce of the University of Wisconsin, speaking at the annual scholarship recognition day chapel at Knox college Tuesday urged the students to look on college not as work but as a part of life and to endeavor to get something out of it besides book knowledge.

"The outcome of a college is to prepare the student to master the circumstances around him," President Bruce said.

He also spoke at the annual Phi Beta Kappa dinner Tuesday night. He said that for 20 years every president of the United States had been a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

ONLY 1 NAME
IS PRESENTED TO CONFERENCE

Nomination of Milwaukee Man to Head District Meets Instant Approval

Herbert N. Laflin of Milwaukee, will be the new governor of the Tenth district of Rotary International.

When he was nominated for that office at Wednesday morning's business session of the district conference at Lawrence Memorial chapel there was no doubt as to whom the thousands of Rotarians in attendance wanted. Mention of his name by Lee C. Rasey of Appleton, conference chairman, brought acclaim by handclapping from all over the house.

It took but a moment to finish the formality of placing him in nomination to succeed Willard N. "Slouter" Parker of Madison, who was presiding at the time. Ernest Hildner of Houghton, Mich., arose to second the nomination made by Mr. Rasey and was followed quickly by George Whyte of Kenosha, who moved the closing of nominations. There was a loud "aye" when the motion was put and a burst of wild applause after the yes sounded forth instructing the secretary to cast a unanimous ballot for his election.

Mr. Laflin was not in the chapel at the time but was located quickly and escorted to the platform amid cheers. He spoke for about 15 minutes in a fervent message of acceptance in words which breathed his devotion to Rotary.

"Rotary is like a glorious pathway around the world, spreading the principles of brotherhood and humanity," said Mr. Laflin. "Let us go on in our task of making life better and more useful in lifting man nearer his God."

A platform of ideals was laid before the assembly by the speaker who said the Rotarian is one who loves the outdoors; one who amid the sorrows of life could keep the spirit of youth in his heart; who could find good in every faith; who could help men find the divine; who loves his neighbor and the laughter of children; who has a chivalrous heart; who has the feeling of a sportsman and a song on his lips.

"Inspired by our love of Rotary and for fellow men and believing in humanity, the destiny of man and the God of our fathers, we go on to meet the coming year," Mr. Laflin said in closing.

Mr. Laflin's nomination must be submitted to the international Rotary convention in Toronto for ratification. This is more or less of a formality but he does not begin his work until the international meeting has given its approval.

Mr. Laflin, who is a prominent Milwaukee attorney, is chief counsel for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co. He served as president of Milwaukee Rotary club and was chairman of the district conference in Milwaukee last year.

Sherman Rogers of New York City was scheduled to speak at the morning session on "The Third Side of Industry," but for some reason which could not be explained, he was not in Appleton. Attempt was made to reach him by telephone in New York but he was attending a theater. It is believed there was a misunderstanding as to date.

The registration fee of the next Tenth district conference of Rotary International will be $5 per person with an additional assessment of $1 per capita to be paid by each club on or before 60 days before the district conference. Such was the resolution presented by Dr. Austin O. Olmsted of Green Bay, chairman of the registration committee.

PREMIERS MEET TO

Brussels—The conference which Premier Theunis and Foreign Minister Hymans of Belgium are to have with Premier Mussolini of Italy had been fixed for May 15, it was announced Wednesday. They are to meet the Italian premier at Milan.

Foreign Minister Hymans conferred Tuesday evening with the Italian ambassador regarding arrangements for the Milan visit, and with the British ambassador in connection with the visit of the Belgian statement to Prime Minister MacDonald in England over the coming weekend.

Both the conferences are for consideration of the procedure to be taken by the allies toward putting the reparations experts' report into operation.

BERTRAND RUSSELL BLAMES AMERICA FOR WORLD CHAOS

Says Things Would Change If
France Were Made To Pay
Debts To U. S.

London—"America is morally responsible for the military arm of France, and France is directly responsible for keeping the military arm of Europe in the condition of an armed camp, and all parts of Europe in a continued state of unsettlement, business depression and general anxiety."

The man who said this to me was Hon. Bertrand Russell, famous author of many standard works on philosophy, sociology, and the higher mathematics—a typical example of the men with first-class brains who have joined the British Labor Party and given it much of its intellectual driving power. He is coming shortly to America on a lecture tour.

"America," said Russell, began to be responsible for the attitude of France shortly following the Treaty of Versailles.

ALONG DIFFERENT LINES
The ways of England and the ways of France have been divergent since the conclusion of the treaty. The war being over, England thought the thing to do was to get back to work and to business. She taxed her people enormously. She balanced her budget. She demobilized her armies and went a long way toward disarmament. She considered herself in honor bound to hearken to America's demand for payment of money advanced to her and came to an agreement with your government for the payment of principal and interest.

"France has not greatly taxed her people and has not really balanced her budget. She has maintained the most powerful army and the greatest military air fleet in the world. 'Protecting' that she urgently needed the money Germany owed her for reparations, France has gone a long way toward making such payments utterly impossible, and towards destroying Germany, by juggling the plebiscite results in Upper Silesia and by marching into the Ruhr and utterly demoralizing and partially destroying the fabric of the greatest industrial region in the world.

"Striving for the military, political and economic hegemony on the continent, France has concluded a series of alliances with Poland and the nations of the Little Entente which have made those countries military satellites of a militaristic France.

AMERICA'S RESPONSIBILITY
"How is America responsible?"
"By the mere fact that she has treated England in one way, and France in another."

"America demanded that England pay her debts. And I don't blame her. I have never had much sympathy with those who have said America should forgive Europe the debts she owes. Europe has not behaved in such a way as to deserve such treatment.

"But America has never demanded in a drastic and downright way that France should pay her debts. If America had done so, the whole structure of Europe has built up would tumble like the house of cards it is."

"America holds the key. In many ways America is the center of peace or war, progress or retrogression, economic depression or recovery. All that is needed is that the full truth be told the American people. There are financial interests, oil interests and other big business interests which, for selfish reasons of their own, are making French propaganda in America. We British are not asking Americans to be pro-British or anti-French. We are simply asking you to be pro-peace, pro-world settlement, anti-war, anti-militarism, anti-imperialism. And you can bring this about by holding the scales evenly, by treating France exactly as you do England."

KEYNOTE SPEECHES

Visitors Pleased With Conference Arrangements

More than 1000 Rotarian guests are being housed, fed and entertained in Appleton. Registration figures are not complete and the guests continued to arrive Tuesday and as late as Wednesday morning. Attendance at all of the sessions and entertainments has been unusually large. Although every available dining room is being used for the serving of meals, especially breakfasts, the guests seem to be well pleased with the service. Several delegates who have attended other Rotary sessions have complimented the committees on the smooth running conference which they have effected.

After all the banquets and parties were over last night, the visitors amused themselves. In each hotel, there was considerable fun and pranks playing. It was long after the wee small hours before some of the clowns of the visiting clubs stopped their fun making and snatched a few hours sleep.

500 AT DANCE
A large number of Appleton women and girls responded to the invitation to act as dance partners for the visiting members. The decorations for the junior prom had been kept intact and they made the party festive. Music was furnished by Oth Horst's orchestra. More than 500 people attended the dance during the evening.

Hartford, which is just a newly organized club, had every one of its charter members at the conference. Green Bay, Kaukauna and Appleton are the other 100 per cent clubs, while many have a large attendance.

Joseph Schumitsch of Antigo was adjudicated a bankrupt on Monday, April 28. His liabilities are $20,545.55 and assets $2,200, all of which are claimed exempt. The first meeting of creditors will be held in the office of the referee in bankruptcy Saturday, May 10.

Menasha—Investigation may follow the tragic death here on Saturday of Albert Babcock, painter who, while intoxicated, is believed to have fallen into a mill race and drowned. His body was taken from the paper mill flumes one hour after he had been seen alive.

Relatives of the dead man claim to have seen him purchase several bottles of moonshine at various downtown places. They had warned saloon keepers against selling him liquor, they said, and several times appealed to authorities.

Babcock's relatives now plan to lay their evidence before the district attorney with the request that action be taken against the parties who furnished Babcock with the moonshine.

SUICIDE ATTEMPT MAY BRING DEATH

Oshkosh Man Found Wandering in Cemetery with Bullet in Brain

By Associated Press
Oshkosh—Suffering from a self-inflicted bullet wound in his head through the channel of his right ear, Albert A. Geides of Milwaukee was found in a dazed condition wandering in Riverside cemetery early Wednesday morning where some time during the night he had attempted to do away with his life, while in a mental lapse brought on by a long period of illness.

He is in a serious condition at a local hospital. The bullet, a .32 caliber missile, is lodged in his head and physicians fear the results may be fatal. An X-ray picture was to be taken Wednesday morning to determine its exact location and the possibility of its removal.

He is 55 years of age and for several years had been an inmate at a Milwaukee hospital. He appeared at the home of relatives here Tuesday in a nervous state but gave no indication that he contemplated suicide.

Workmen observed him at the family lot in Riverside cemetery during a greater part of Tuesday. Wednesday they discovered his coat, vest and hat, clothed with blood, and beside the garments was a revolver lying on the floor of a tool shed which is located in an isolated section of the burial ground.

ALLEGED FORGER CAUGHT IN FONDY

C. H. Luttman, charged with passing bogus checks was brought back from Fond du Lac Tuesday by Detective John R. Duval. He was arraigned in municipal court Wednesday morning and his case adjourned with out definite date. He was temporarily lodged in the county jail.

While in Appleton, Luttman is alleged to have passed a worthless check of $8 on Meyer-Seeger Music company and one for $23.50 on Joseph Bellin. The latter check was signed C. H. Martin. He is said to have passed a check for $6 at Oshkosh on Wall Drug company.

Chippewa Falls—George Dunn, sentenced late Tuesday to serve one year in that state's prison following his conviction of manslaughter in the fourth degree, was taken to Waupun Tuesday night by a deputy sheriff.

Dunn's conviction grew out of an automobile accident Dec. 16, 1925, in Eagle Point when his automobile struck a concrete culvert guard and overturned, killing Arthur Danzelson and Charles Lavigne.

More than 300 Rotary-Annes are being shown a good time by the Appleton Rotary-Annes according to reports which come from all the visitors. More than 300 of them were served at luncheon at the Valley Inn Tuesday noon where they were presented with colonial bouquets of flowers to pin to their coats. The Tuesday luncheon had to be served in two relays, the one group being taken direct to the hotel while the other had an automobile ride. Those who ate first rode last.

The women were returned to Appleton in time for a delightful musical program given at Peabody hall at Lawrence Conservatory of Music. To the visiting women, the talent which Appleton can call to its platform in recital is really remarkable. The women were guests at the banquets in the evening and at the ball at Armory G which followed.

Cards followed the luncheons at both Appleton and Conway hotels Wednesday noon. More than 150 were served at each place. The tables were decorated with yellow candles and bouquets of mixed flowers with pussy willows. This was the last official entertainment for the Rotary-Annes.

BOLDT GETS CONTRACT FOR WHEDON REMODELING

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c and 30c.

NATURE KEEPS POPULATION AND FOOD BALANCED

Professor of Economics Says There Is Little Danger of Shortage

By Associated Press
Berkeley, Cal., May 1. — The population of the world will increase to such an extent that the food supply will run out, "No," predicts Professor C. C. Plehn of the department of economics in the University of California.

But the professor qualifies his negative by saying that if the population of the world ever increases as fully as it has the power to, there certainly will be a shortage of food. He explains that, as a matter of statistics, this probability never can happen, since events and conditions always intervene to prevent over-population.

Yet, he concedes, in certain countries this economic over-population has occurred. He cites the annual famines in China and India, which he contends, are due to the fact that the birth rate never has been kept down in those countries and consequently the food supply proves inadequate.

"Dread diseases always follow famine in the train of excessive population and shortage of food," the professor points out, and he states further that as population increases the land is proportionately overworked.

"In America, especially, population has always been held in check. People are made to realize the importance of keeping a balance between the population and the food supply. Farmers manage to produce enough food to satisfy everybody, even though agricultural methods improve more slowly than the population increases. The amount of effort expended in labor and machinery for getting food is increasing steadily, so that although population tends to increase more rapidly than food, there never will be danger of food giving out."

WANT MERCHANTS AT ROAD HEARING

Relocation of Highways 15 and 18 Will Be Considered at Kaukauna Request

Appleton Chamber of Commerce is urging business men to be present at the hearing at the courthouse at 7:30 Thursday evening on the relocation of two highways. The reason is that this city will be affected somewhat by the change.

The hearing was called by the state highway committee at the request of the city of Kaukauna, which objects to relocation of highway 15 within Kaukauna and to routing of highway 18 into Appleton by way of Lakerd.

Kaukauna prefers to have highway 18 come through South Kaukauna and Kimberly and Combined Locks, instead of following highway 114 from Sherwood to Lakerd and thence north into Appleton. It is an advantage to the city of Appleton, it is said, to have the highway come over Lakerd, as this route always has been in bad condition due to its maintenance by three counties. Converting it to a state highway overcomes this trouble and the road also gives a highly satisfactory outlet from Appleton to the trading area of Calumet-co.

Business Meeting Appleton Advertising club will meet at 12:10 Thursday noon in Vermilion's. This is to be a business meeting.

YOUNG MEN START TRIP TO COAST

Anthony Fountain and Emmet Butler, who have been making preparations for an automobile trip to California for several weeks, left Wednesday. They have not made out a schedule, will travel leisurely and have fixed no date for returning. The first thing they did was to purchase a second hand touring car for which they paid $75. Then they purchased an entire camping outfit including a tent and attached fixtures to the body of their car for carrying it. A supply of provisions has been purchased and a stove for preparing their meals.

The young men will take a southerly course and stop wherever night overtakes. They do not expect to reach their destination until June or July, depending on the number of side trips and may not return until late in the fall. The trip has been planned for pleasure only.

ROTARY DIRECTORS ARE PRESIDENT'S CABINET-KOEHRING

Milwaukee Rotarian Tells How Board of Directors Should Function

A Rotary board of directors is a president's cabinet, a governing body and a judicial body, according to an analysis made by Phillip A. Koehring, president of the Milwaukee Rotary club, at an address before the Tenth district Rotary conference Tuesday afternoon.

Acting as a president's cabinet, the board of directors in a local Rotary club, the speakers said, should serve in a manner analogous to the cabinet of the President of the United States. It should counsel freely with the president of Rotary, who is not to take an autocratic role. The board should assume its duties willingly and adhere strictly to Rotary policy and Rotary's code of ethics.

As a governing body, the board should guard zealously its administrative powers. It is entrusted with the supervision of the club's expenses, carefully analyze the budget and audit bills before they are allowed. The directors, he said, should ratify all committee appointments that the president may make and should assume the responsibility for the nomination of directors. Although the nominations come from the floor, the board should be responsible for the selection of two candidates for each office.

INTERPRET LAWS. Functioning as a judicial body, the director's duty is to post themselves on the constitution and bylaws of the local club, the district and the Rotary International, and should assume the responsibility of interpreting, enforcing and maintaining those laws. It should especially enforce the rule of attendance without fear of favor, he said. It should provide a means for registering complaints and filing appeals. It is to act both as the judge and the jury. In arriving at decisions it should be guided by fairness and Rotary principles, consider both sides of a question and then decide the issue fearlessly.

ATTEND MEETINGS. The directors should attend all club meetings and board sessions. When these meetings conflict or are held too close together as to make it impossible for some directors to attend both, preference should be given the directors' meeting. Mr. Koehring did not advise weekly meetings for directors, but they should be held at least once a month for the allowing of bills and whenever called by the president.

In selecting the personnel for the board of directors, clubs were urged to choose only men who are imbued with the Rotary code of ethics. No one should be chosen who is connected with an illegitimate business or unworthy enterprise. They should be respected, law-abiding citizens in the community, patriotic, loyal and men of character and personality. By personality he did not mean personal appearance, but one whose activities in civic and social life evidence a radiant personality. They should also be honest, truthful and men of clear vision and a conception of service.

FIRE INSURANCE PLATBOOKS OUT

New Volumes Show Location of Every Piece of Property in Appleton

New fire insurance platbooks of the city of Appleton have been received by the various fire insurance agents here from the Sandborn Map company of New York. Two hundred copies were published for distribution here and among the fire insurance companies which carry policies on local property.

The publishers waited three years beyond the usual date of issuance for the remembrance of the city but gave up their vigil about eight months ago and proceeded with the work using the old numbers and street names. These books are published every ten years.

Every piece of property in Appleton is indicated in the books, which contain approximately 25 sectional maps about three feet square. Every lot and business or factory site is shown, and the exact location of the building drawn in. Colors indicate the type of building.

One plot is devoted to the Kimberly-Clark mill at Kimberly, which is shown with all its pulp yards, slide tracks and other details the same as the Appleton manufacturing plants. Another shows the location of the fire station and indicates the distance of each piece of property from that point as a radius. Clerks are drawn for each half mile of distance.

The maps take the guesswork out of classifying of buildings for fire insurance risk.

PROBE STRANGE DEATH BY FIRE

Fond du Lac—Miss Kate Sharkey, 64, was found burned to death lying on the floor of her home here Monday night. The death has started a double investigation, for the woman was burned to a crisp and yet the rug on which she lay was not scorched and there was no evidence of fire in the home.

The body was found by her brother, John Sharkey. She was knocked down and trampled by a horse seven years ago and has been an invalid since. Her brother said that she was left alone in the home for two hours and when he returned he found her charred body lying on the rug in the living room.

A coroner's jury has been impaneled and the fire chief has started an investigation.

CITY WANTS PART OF WHEDON LOT TO MAKE ALLEY WIDER

Council Determines to Get Property to Make Alley 16 Feet Wide

Preliminary steps looking toward the widening of west end of the alley in block 28 opening on Oneida-st were taken Tuesday morning at a special meeting of the common council called by Mayor John Goodland.

In view of the fact that S. A. Whedon is about to replace the frame building at the entrance of the alley with a new structure Mayor Goodland decided the time opportune for definite action before the contract was let so that both the common council and property owners would know where they are at.

The following resolution was passed by unanimous vote of the eleven aldermen present:

"Whereas, A strip of land 15 feet wide has been acquired for a public alley in block 28, Appleton plat, Second ward, extending from the center of said block east to Morrison-st. and it has been reported that the frame buildings on lot 6 in said block are to be torn down and a new modern building erected thereon; and, therefore, be it

Resolved, That a strip of land be acquired by the city of Appleton sufficient to widen the present public alley to a width of 16 feet by gift, by purchase at an agreed price, or by condemnation under chapter 32 of the statutes of Wisconsin. Therefore be it.

Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed by the mayor to call upon the proper owners in said block about the strip of land in said block which should be involved in the widening of said alley; to wit, Samuel Whedon, John Conway, Henry Schuetter, Matt Schmidt, F. W. Woolworth, Wisconsin Traction, Light Heat and Power company and Jack Shapiro."

Mayor Goodland appointed as such committee Aldermen R. C. Zilske, Charles Fose, Robert McGilgan, George Richards and Charles Thompson.

Sister Camilla, who was called to Appleton by the illness and death of her mother, Mrs. Anna Vosbeck, has returned to Sacred Heart orphanage at Pueblo, Colo. Martin Vosbeck, who also was called here, has returned to St. Francis seminary at Milwaukee.

ROTARY SPEAKER SAYS FELLOWSHIP IS KEY OF ROTARY

Rotarian Hildner Pleads for Greater Understanding Among Men

While there is a contest between the fundamentalists and liberalists, Secretary Ernest G. Hildner of the Houghton, Mich., Rotary club, maintained in an address before the Tenth district of Rotarians in Lawrence Memorial chapel Tuesday afternoon, that there is a Rotary fundamental, and that is: The keystone of the Rotary and its fellowship.

Science and nature have mastered man and the very problems man has created now are overwhelming him, for he cannot find their solution. The solution to most problems, he pointed out, is to be found in the fellowship of strong and courageous hearts.

It is somewhat difficult to cultivate fellowship in big clubs, Mr. Hildner asserted. A small town Rotary club has an advantage over a big town Rotary club with 400 members or more in that the members have a means of getting better acquainted. Fellowship, the speaker said, is a matter of all being together in the same boat, where traitors and cowards are not wanted, but where cooperation counts.

TALK ON OWN AFFAIRS. As one means of cultivating fellowship in a club the speaker advised having the individual members speak on their classification of business or occupation. There should be no fear of overdoing that arrangement by having them repeat their talks, for nothing helps a member more than to learn something of the other fellow's problems, troubles, failures, successes, and aspirations.

Understanding men is the secret of fellowship, Mr. Hildner pointed out. Successful operation of a Rotary club comes from understanding one another and the knowledge that all are engaged in a common purpose for the common good of mankind.

A man may be observed in business, but back of his business is a heart of flesh that beats with the same hopes, desires, ambitions, joys and sorrows as are common to his fellowmen. There has been much talk of panaceas, but the real panacea of the world is the panacea of the Man of Galilee, he said, who came not to be ministered unto but to minister.

"If we would preserve the life of the community and get the inspiration and motive power to drive men to service, let us have fellowship and understand one another," the speaker appealed. "Science has discovered that there is unity in all of nature, but see how men are divided in the world. All the world waits upon some great Newton that can incite upon all men that the strongest ties are those of fellowship."

FARMING AND TAXATION

The president of the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul, E. G. Quamme, in an address at Madison, submitted the proposition that states within the next few years should aim to reduce taxes by 50 per cent. Mr. Quamme by reason of his position should have an intimate knowledge of the financial side of the farm problem, and it is his opinion that such a reduction is necessary if agricultural lands are to be relieved of their present burdens and farming made profitable. Present day taxation, he said, is "overburdensome, confiscatory and destroys land value." He cited a case in Minnesota where not many years ago the average tax on a quarter section of land was $40, whereas the ordinary taxes on the same quarter of section today are $400. It is obvious that such a rate of increase is out of all proportion to the productive value of the land.

Mr. Quamme holds, and rightly, that reasonable taxes increase land values, provided the taxes themselves are applied to public improvements which go to make agriculture more profitable and rural life more desirable. In Wisconsin the politicians who are conducting the affairs of the state have a scheme to reduce farm taxation by shifting the burden to manufacture and commerce. Because other forms of industry have not been reduced to quite the vicissitudes of farming, it is their theory that they ought to be made to tempt fate by piling more taxation on them. We do not hear a proposal from these politicians to reduce the sum total of public moneys raised and spent, but only a plan to "shift" taxation. They wish to go on spending the same excessive amounts on political machinery and for purposes from which the citizens receive no benefit.

The tremendous growth of the cost of government in Wisconsin is in itself a proof of extravagance and misuse of public funds. If the many millions of dollars which are squandered through inefficiency and the wholesale use of money on an army of job holders, and through the reckless handling of funds that would soon wreck any business enterprise on earth, were to be saved through sound economies and business practice there would be no ground for "shifting the tax burden." All taxes would be reduced to the extent that agriculture would be relieved and greater prosperity imparted to industry and the people at large. Nine-tenths of our governmental ills in Wisconsin, about which the reformers make so much noise, would be instantly corrected by the introduction of this single reform. It is at the bottom of practically all our troubles which relate to government.

large cities have issued proclamations or statements to citizens, calling upon them to observe the children's festival.

While the celebration will be picturesque, its deep underlying purpose will be to call attention to the fact that the United States, in spite of its wealth and progress is fifth among the countries of the world in the matter of saving child health and sixteenth in preserving the lives of mothers in childbirth.

The American Child Health association was stirred to action by the fact that 200,000 children in the United States die before they reach the age of one year. Physical examinations given to 22,000,000 school children reveal that there is something wrong with over half of them, often something preventable; five millions have defective eyes; a million have defective hearing; a million have tuberculosis; a quarter million have organic heart trouble; and three to five million are underfed.

Surely it is time we set a day to think about these things.

CHILD LABOR REGULATION

The house has passed the resolution proposing a constitutional amendment to empower congress to limit, regulate or prohibit the labor of children under eighteen years of age. The vote showed a majority of more than four to one for the proposal. Mr. Berger says it is a socialistic measure. If that is so, what is to be said of prohibition? All things considered, it would be better to have child labor regulated by the states, but experience has shown that this method is without satisfactory results. The states where child labor is exploited most flagrantly and harmfully are those which refuse to put into effect a social principle that is now accepted by all progressive and enlightened communities and by ethical and humanitarian employers.

Congress has repeatedly sought to regulate child labor by federal statute, but the acts it has passed have been held unconstitutional by the supreme court. We appear to have reached the point where the degrading and vicious effects of child labor exploitation can be reached only by the federal government. Although the proposal to do this is another long stride in the direction of concentration of federal power, a tendency which in our judgment has been overdone in late years, nevertheless it seems to find justification in conditions which many of the states are unwilling to improve and which constitute a social offense. It is a case where facts and theory do not coincide, and where facts should govern. The indications are that the senate will approve the house bill and if it does we are of the opinion that the president will sign it.

A NOVEL PLATFORM

"The country is not going to hell and will never get there unless the pessimists drive it there." "According to my best judgment and belief I can perform the duties of lieutenant-governor to the satisfaction of myself, at least." "I also agree not to discuss any issues, either national or state, during the election, for the reason that I believe that ninety per cent, or a large per cent, of the issues or would-be issues now before the American people are more comic than real. Therefore, I feel that it is good policy not to discuss any of them, and I am very much inclined to think that, if I should be fortunate enough to be elected, I would be opposed to all of them. I do not intend to spend more money to secure the election than I expect to get out of the office, if elected."

The foregoing are a few of the excerpts from the announcement of the candidacy of Mr. E. G. Hancock, a citizen of St. Louis, for lieutenant-governor of Missouri. Incidentally, he says he is a descendant of John Hancock, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and he is just as thorough an advocate of liberty as John Hancock was.

A little of this sort of political humor is good for the state and the nation, and it is not impossible that this good-natured satire may appeal to the voters. Mr. Hancock's language is that, in many respects, of the average citizen. It represents perhaps not an unwholesome attitude toward public office and public service. The absurdity of electing men to many offices on issues that have no existence and have not the slightest relation to the services to be performed is becoming more and more apparent. It is not unlikely that Mr. Hancock's pleasant rebuke of standard practices may prove to be a good platform.

FOR THE AMERICAN CHILD

Thursday, May 1, will be "bill of rights" day for the American child. The American Child Health association, of which Herbert Hoover is president, has enlisted civic, religious, and social service organizations in a great national effort to concentrate attention for the one day on better health for children.

The enterprise has the indorsement of President Coolidge given in a personal letter to Mr. Hoover. Celebrations, with outdoor pageants and plays for children, have been arranged in every state in the Union. The governors of practically every state and the mayors of most of the

P. E. ARRIVES IN BRIDGETPORT

The board of education of Bridgetport, Conn., has discovered that when a pupil's progress in school depends on physical as well as on mental fitness for promotion, those branches of education which have to do with the training of the body belong to the school as well as to the parents and teachers. For three years now Bridgetport has had a physical requirement as well as a mental requirement for promotion in school. For instance, one of the definite standards fixed for promotion from the fifth to the sixth grades has been a clean mouth with no unfilled cavities in the teeth, and as a result of this requirement nearly 100 per cent of the children came up for examination for promotion to the sixth grade with sound teeth. That's just one point, but it means a great deal for the future health of the community.

A different requirement is now provided for promotion in every grade from the first to the eighth, and under the new plan a pupil's failure to meet the physical test counts as a failure in a major subject, and failure in any two major subjects prevents promotion. Consequently the pupil is going to take hygiene as seriously as he does geography, and so are his parents and so are the teachers in general.

This is a great advance in education and Bridgetport is to be congratulated. In most communities, in New York state for example, no school credit is allowed for the particular standard is set for promotion, and no paradox, but the sad truth, that one will find more evidence of the neglect of this side of education in the public schools than anywhere else today.

In Bridgetport, where education is beginning to go deeper, all girls, beginning in grade six, must receive the domestic science cooking course—it is compulsory for promotion; in grade eight they must take a course in infant feeding which includes milk modification; junior high school girls and seniors must take a course in prenatal, infant and preschool feeding, no matter what general high school course they may elect. Goshamighty, it begins to look as though they were getting right down to education in Bridgetport! Anyhow they're training better future wives, mothers and citizens than have ever been trained on algebra, Caesar or Shelley.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Ladybug Craves Vase
I am a ladybug craving a vase. I am 35 years old, height 63 inches, weight 155 pounds, f. o. b. I walk two to six miles a day, pushing our 1923 model baby carriage, eat two meals a day, sleep eight hours at night, and am occupied with a multitude of duties but no manual labor. Oh, what to do, what to do! (C. G.)

Answer.—Send stamped, self addressed envelope with your request and I will mail you some advice, but I'll tell you frankly, ladybug, there's a discrepancy somewhere in your story, for its doesn't agree with your ponderosity a-t-all. Maybe this is what you're doing now, while the 30 pounds bonus is what you collected before you began the present regime.

Change of Life
I have been considerably below par for three or four months. My doctor tells me I have change of life. Is there such a sickness in the male sex. (H. C. J.)

Answer.—There is not, nor is there such a sickness in the female sex.

Cream in Coffee
Does the addition of cream to a cup of coffee lessen to any extent the harmful effect of the coffee? Is it harmful to drink black coffee or coffee with no cream? (E. E. B.)

Answer.—The more cream, the less coffee you take. So, if coffee is harmful, cream would lessen the harm. But coffee is not harmful for grownups, as a rule. Black coffee is all right if you prefer it so.

Seeing Zigzag
Once in a long while I see zigzag flashes of light before my eyes, and then have a severe headache and a seasick feeling. . . . (M. K. J. E.)

Answer.—That is a usual aura or warning signal of a migraine seizure—an attack of periodical sick headache. Sometimes the zigzag flashes or "fortification scotomata" occur without the headache following, or sometimes there is merely a "seasick" feeling without the headache.

Asphalt Leads List Of Paving Used In Cities

More and more asphalt pavements are being laid where the traffic is heaviest every year. With the experience of New York, where Fifth Avenue, said to be the busiest street in the world, as far as traffic is concerned, to guide them, cities all over the country are increasing their asphalt streets.

According to statistics, the paved streets of 290 American cities, merged into a single great highway 18 feet wide, would extend in a continuous pavement for a distance of 56,974.8 miles, or enough to more than twice encircle the globe.

These 290 cities, which comprise 63.8 per cent of the 53,898,385 urban population of the United States, report a total of 601,653,547 square yards of pavement. Of this, 469,463,141 square yards, or 78 per cent, are of types higher than waterbound macadam. These higher types in turn comprise percentages of the total types higher than waterbound macadam as follows: Asphaltic types, 53.9 per cent; brick, 21.9 per cent; stone block, 11.6 per cent; wood block, 3.3 per cent; Portland cement concrete 5.5 per cent; tar, macadam, 2.3 per cent; miscellaneous, 1.3 per cent.

In the 65 cities of 100,000 population or more reporting, the asphaltic types comprise 54.9 per cent of the total yardage of pavement, higher than waterbound macadam. The percentage for the other types higher than waterbound macadam are as follows: Bricks, 19.9 per cent; wood block, 4.0 per cent; stone block 14.5 per cent; Portland cement concrete, 3.5 per cent; tar macadam, 1.8 per cent; miscellaneous, 1.4 per cent.

Asphalt streets wear well, are easily repaired when repairs are necessary, are noiseless, smooth, waterproof (preventing drainage troubles) and resist stresses caused by temperature changes, all of which reasons contribute to the popularity of this material for city pavements.

Malloch Coats Ridicule Capsules With His Humor

Douglas Malloch, the humorist who has made Appleton people hold their sides for laughter many times, was one of the outstanding features of the Tuesday afternoon Rotary program at Lawrence Memorial chapel. He gave one of his serio-comic lectures on "Sinners I Have Known."

His every sentence was weighted with laughter or with good wholesome philosophy. The listeners laughed much even when the jokes were on them or on their chairmen. Mr. Malloch included in his list of sinners the liar, the gossip, the quitter, the lecher, the grouch, the pessimist and the fiend for work. To each of these he gave what he considered their just due.

The liar was the first type attacked by the humorist and in his good natured way he pointed out the treachery of the liar. He said that the flatterer is the worst liar of them all and warned people against those who make use of this art. He advocated the invention of a machine which could detect when a man was lying and then told that one about the man who said that this machine has already been invented. His friend asked if he had ever seen the machine and the man replied that he had not only seen her but had married her.

The next to come under Mr. Malloch's brand of ridicule was the gossip and here he scored for the women. He said that the male gossip was far worse than the female. He said that the gossip is not content to tell a lie, he peddles it. He urged that people remember only the kind things and that they do a lot of forgiving in this world because they will need it in the next.

Only those who have heard the seemingly endless supply of definitions for pessimist and optimist that Malloch gives can appreciate the fact that he gave dozens of both. The audience was delighted and wished that it could have remembered them all. He derided the grouch and the quitter.

Interspersed in the jokes and serious comment were inserted apt poems by Malloch himself.

PLUNGE THROUGH TWO WINDOWS KEEPS DOG FROM HUGE 'ENEMIES'

When terror strikes, home is best place in the world even though one might be within an inch of death in getting there.

That appears to be the conviction of Tag, a bull pup owned by Daniel P. Steinberg, 767 Durkeest. But life still is sweet to the little canine even though he looks upon it from bandages that blanket a good part of his body. Tag got his first real glimpse of the world Saturday, and that is when he learned the comforts of home and encountered his grief. He was taken into the Steinberg home shortly after Christmas as a newly born pup and had the basement as his abode during the winter months.

He was allowed to roam outdoors Saturday while the boys of the family were busy in the yard. It was a great life until a group of large working horses owned by Ullman stables came by with a heavy clank clank of iron shoes on the pavement.

Tag saw these monsters of flesh and blood, giants of the quadruped race, and they chilled his spine. He ran for the house stricken with terror and encircled it several times but could find no way to enter. In desperation he made one mad dash toward a basement window and, crashing through both a storm window and inside sash, landed on the floor. He was minus some hair and hide and had some bad cuts from the glass, but that mattered little to him so long as he was safe from those awful giants.

NORTHERN LUMBER MARKETS ARE QUIET

Business is Picking up But Hardly As Rapidly As Was Expected

The lumber trade has continued to gain in activity, as a result of good weather stimulating building, says the American Lumberman, Chicago. Construction is active throughout the Pacific coast region and the South, and a material quickening has been noticeable in the East as well as in the middle West, where the drying up of the roads has benefited country trade. Important northern markets, however, remain unexpectedly quiet. Building in some of these not having developed on the scale expected, retailers are exceedingly conservative and consequently wholesale trade is slow. Though trade from other sections has been of fair and gradually increasing volume, the southern pine market has been affected by the comparative dullness in the north. Prices are slightly lower than a fortnight ago, but no actual weakness is apparent.

The larger mills have enjoyed good business and have been shipping heavily, so that their stocks are still limited. They show no eagerness for new business, holding firmly to their price lists. The recent declines are largely due to the operations of smaller mills which, in urgent need of business, have made concessions. However, the conviction among manufacturers is strong that northern trade will soon open up, in which case the market will quickly regain its former strength.

Some increase in rail trade is reported by Douglas fir distributors, but the market is still slow and weak. Inquiries, however, are plentiful and prospects are good. West Coast manufacturers meanwhile are continuing their resistance to price declines, and prefer holding their lumber for better values, such as they fuel will soon be obtainable, to disposing of it at present below-cost prices. The best business is still coming from the Atlantic seaboard, but even this is not entirely satisfactory for the reason that offers are very low. This trade is also restricted by the scarcity of vessel space. Building in California is heavy, but the market there is still unsettled on account of heavy stocks. No new development has occurred in connection with export trade, and it remains negligible in volume.

Capital's Service To The Consumer

Says James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor, "No matter who owns the capital, capital works for everybody. The oil companies own the gasoline, but they have to tote it to the roadside where everyone can get it. Equal division is the goal that capitalism constantly approaches. No man wants all the gasoline. He wants six gallons at a time with a service station every few miles. Capitalism performs this service for him. Under 'capitalism', so-called, wealth is more equally divided than under any other system ever known."

The so-called "capitalists" who control the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) are 46,016 stockholders, the majority of them small investors who earned and saved the money to buy stock.

This capital, because it is brought together in a large aggregate, is able to serve the community more effectively than if it were divided up and parceled out into 46,016 separate holdings.

In 1923 this capital brought millions of barrels of crude petroleum from the oil fields, so that during 1924 the 4½ million automobiles of the Middle West may be supplied with gasoline and oils.

This capital has erected large, modern, scientifically equipped refineries, in which to apply the most efficient cracking processes, so that the maximum amount of gasoline may be produced from the crude oil.

This capital has built up a distribution system, with storage depots and service stations at strategic points, throughout the Middle West. By means of this enormous and complete distribution system, petroleum products are delivered to the ultimate consumer with the utmost economy, and the motorist who needs but one gallon at a time receives as efficient service as the manufacturer who buys thousands of gallons.

Without capital the oil would stay in the ground, or at best would serve but a few people adjacent to the oil fields.

By serving the thirty million people of the Middle West with petroleum products, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) makes it possible for you, wherever you may live, to enjoy the benefits of the petroleum wealth of the United States. Without the employment of the capital of the stockholders of this Company this would not be possible.

Under efficient management of a highly experienced Board of Directors, the capital of the 46,016 stockholders of this Company is working night and day for the service of the community.

BRITAIN GROOMS DIRIGIBLE FOR TRIP TO NORTH POLE

Britain's largest dirigible, the R 36, is being groomed for a flight to the north pole this summer. Now that the Phenondah's trip is off, it looks as if John Bull will beat Uncle Sam to it.

Comforts of a palatial ocean liner have been provided for the crew of the R-36. Here is a view of one of the luxurious sleeping cabins.

An alarm clock's tinkle is sweetest music in all the world to a calf belonging to Robert Ralph of Wall Lake, Iowa. Ralph grew tired of feeding his calf twice a day, so he invented an automatic calf-feeder. When feeding time arrives the clock goes off, calls the calf and sets into motion the device which does the feeding. A string, attached to the alarm bell's clapper, releases a ball which, in turn, opens the shoot which lets the grain slide from the hopper into the feeding trough below.

This old tree kept its secret well. But inquisitive boys, playing around its trunk, discovered a cleverly concealed opening down at the base. Prohibition Agent John Marcum crawled through the hole and discovered considerable moonshine had been cached within the massive sycamore. All this in the exclusive Highland's residential district in Louisville, Ky. Federal authorities say it was a supply station for run-running automobiles. Roy White, upon whose property the tree stands, was arrested.

The wrecking crew sure had a tough job here! The Wabash River, near Lafayette, Ind., was filled with remnants of new automobiles, farm implements, furniture, bridge girders and car timbers after a 75-foot span on the Monon Railroad trestle gave way under the weight of a heavily loaded freight train. Twenty cars plunged into the river. And nobody was hurt!

The Woolworth Building, famed as the world's tallest office building, has been sold at approximately $200,000 per floor. Costing $13,500,000 to construct it brought $11,000,000 to the Woolworth heirs. The building is 52 stories high and attracts tourists from all over the world to its tower.

Henry Ford has a new flivver—of the vintage of 1860. He's just bought this old Rogers locomotive in Savannah, Ga. But he isn't going to use it on his railroad. It's to be put in his museum of railway antiques in New York. During the Civil War the old engine saw service in Florida. J. J. McDonough, Savannah railroad and machinery man, later bought it and used it for some years. Ford paid $2,600 for it.

IMMIGRATION CUT IS DANGER TO U. S. FARMING INDUSTRY

Policy of Government in Keeping Out Foreigners Causes Competition

Chicago.—Restricted immigration is causing the development of new agricultural regions, which in a few years will compete sharply with American agriculture. In the opinion of James R. Howard, president of the National Transportation Institute.

Expressing this opinion at the recent convention of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Mr. Howard said:

"Development of new agricultural regions to feed the world is resulting from our policy of restricted immigration. There is a little likelihood that this policy will be changed. So far as the farmer is concerned, the policy shall be to close the door. But this closing of our doors means that the congested populations of Europe must seek other asylums. Already promotional settlement programs are under way in various South American nations as well as in Canada, Australia and Africa. These people crowded out of Europe and into new lands must enter agriculture because agriculture always precedes industry in the building of any new country. There is no doubt that new fields of competition for the American farmer are developing."

"These settlements mean the establishment of industrial trade routes and these routes, unless the ships are under our flag, cannot be expected to be other than favorable to the new settlements and will have a most vital influence upon the American agriculture of the next decade."

"It America is to stay in the world market and produce a surplus of agricultural products, ships are as much a part of the farm equipment as plows or wagons. Too few farmers realize this. The government still owns something like a thousand good steel ships, operated at a heavy deficit of which the farmers are paying their share. We cannot afford to allow these ships to go out from under our flag while we are facing a fight to keep both trade routes and markets."

PICTURIZATION OF REX BEACH NOVEL HERALDED AS STIR- RING DRAMA

The feature at the Elite Theatre Thursday Friday and Saturday will be "Flowing Gold," an adaptation of Rex Beach's latest novel, this First National picture, which was produced by Richard Walton Tully and directed by Joe De Grasse. It is declared to set new standards in the gripping quality of its drama and action.

Milton Mills and Anna Q. Nilsson are seen in the leading roles of Calvin Gray and Allegheny Briskow, supported by Alice Calhoun, Josephine Crowell, Charles Sellon, Bert Woodruff, Cissy Fitzgerald and John Roche.

Author Beach has chosen for the setting of his story a small town in Texas which had been thrown into a furor by the discovery of oil in the vicinity. It immediately becomes the Mecca of fortune-seekers and adventurers of every kind, among whom are Calvin Gray and Henry Nelson.

Nelson, a former army officer, had gone there to become rich. Gray to avenge himself on Nelson because the latter had been instrumental in getting him dishonorably discharged from the army.

ROTARY SHOW IS FINE DIVERSION FOR DELEGATES

Amateur and Professional Entertainers Provide Fine Program in Chapel

Keith circuit vaudeville had nothing on Appleton's entertainment for visiting Rotarians at Lawrence Memorial chapel on Tuesday evening. The production which was given under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Bannister was a great success and gave the Rotarians two hours of varied entertainment.

A series of dances by the tiny pupils of Miss Mildred Hagerty opened the program. These were followed by a demonstration by "Doc" Finkle of Seymour, magician. Among other tricks which proved of interest, he robbed "Cub" Buck of a good breakfast by not letting him get away with the sausages which he had down the back of his coat.

Mr. and Mrs. Bannister made their first appearance here in vaudeville in a skit called "Mr. and Mrs. Hudson." It was an abused husband affair which gave the Rotary men much to laugh at. The Bannisters have played in the Keith circuit. Miss Ruth McKean repeated her dance number with the Dixie girls from "The Time, the Place and the Girl." Harry Oaks appeared in one of his dialogue sketches. He also is a professional vaudeville actor.

One of the most unique numbers on the program was the singing by a quintet of Oneida Indians. Most of the songs were Indian interpretations of Christian hymns. The pronounced rhythm of the songs and their Indian harmony was very interesting.

Miss Lucille Meusel and the Lawrence Glee club completed the program. Miss Meusel sang several selections which showed the range of her voice to splendid advantage. The Glee club sang "Glorious Ballade," "Old Man Noah" and "Down in Alabama."

300 Served At Rotary Dinner In Masonic Hall

More than 300 people were served at the banquet at the new Masonic temple on Tuesday evening. The serving was done by an army of girls, mostly high school teachers who worked the serving business by systematically passing things from one to another along the line.

Souvenirs of all kinds were placed upon the tables, everything from Scolding Locks Hairpins to Johnson's and National cookies and sample milk bottle caps. During the entire meal the hall resounded with all the Rotary favorite songs. When two groups decided to sing different songs at the same time, there was bedlam.

Members of Appleton Women's club certainly did an enormous job in getting all those people served within so short a time. Every one of the guests was out of the hall before 8 o'clock.

INDIAN HELD FOR STEALING COUPE

Powless was employed by a farmer three miles south of Seymour and is said to have taken the car to Oneida where he left it in the bushes at the side of the road while he returned to Seymour for his clothes. He is alleged to have informed the officers where they could find the car.

ON THE SCREEN

MABEL NORMAND IN NEWITCHING COMEDY

An appeal to the lover of the artistic and picturesque is Mack Sennett's "Suzanna," starring Mabel Normand, an Allied Producers and Distributors Corporation release, now showing at the Majestic.

Against a background historic and romantic, "Suzanna" faithfully depicts the charm, romance and fruitfulness of California about 1835. To the most minute detail, the manners, customs, adventures and buildings of the early Californians have been reproduced and revived for this quaint but beautiful story.

The character of Suzanna, so ably portrayed by Miss Normand is that of an early Spanish-Californian peon, raised so from the day of her birth. Through design, however, Suzanna has been cheated of her rightful heritage, for she is in reality the daughter of a Don of high caste and lineage.

Because of her apparent low station in life, Suzanna cannot accept the love of the man she loves and is loved by. But fate, however, decides to make amends, and everything ends as it should.

"ENEMIES OF CHILDREN" IS STARTLING FILM OF PRESENT-DAY CONDITIONS

Anna Q. Nilsson appears in the greatest role of her brilliant career in "Enemies of Children," the elaborate screen production of George Gibbs' powerful novel of present day conditions. "Youth Triumphant." This is a story which begins in the sordid slums of a great city and rapidly travels to the mansions of the idle rich. The picture version of this startling story surpasses in its dramatic power even the story as told by George Gibbs in his story and vivid pages. "Enemies of Children" will be shown on the screen of the New Bijou Theatre today and Thursday.

Little Virginia Lee Corbin as Patsy, the discarded urchin of the slums, in the brilliant screen version of George Gibbs' novel, "Youth Triumphant," which is known in the film form as "Enemies of Children," is in truth, the darling of the screen.

A distinguished cast supports Miss Corbin and Miss Nilsson, while the picture ranks among the most sumptuous and lavish productions which

SO BIG

By Edna Ferber

"Fanny Davenport's an emerald," said Selma, quickly, and rather surprised to find herself saying it. "Yes. That's it."

"And—and Hempel's father—he's wheat."

"By golly, Selma," shouted Simeon Peake. "You're a shrewd little tyke!"

It was after reading "Pride and Prejudice" that she decided to be the Jane Austen of her time. She became very mysterious and enjoyed a brief period of unpopularity at Miss Flater's owing to her veiled allusions to her "work"; and an annoying way of smiling to herself and tapping a ruminate toe as though engaged in visions far too exquisite for the common eye. Her chum Julie Hempel, properly enough, became enraged at this and gave Selma to understand that she must make her choice between revealing her secret or being cast out of the Hempel heart. Selma swore her to secrecy.

"Very well, then. Now I'll tell you. I'm going to be a novelist." Julie was palpably disappointed, though she said, "Selma," as though properly impressed, but followed it up with: "Still, I don't see why you had to be so mysterious about it."

You just don't understand, Julie. Writers have to study life at first hand. And if people know you're studying them they don't act natural. Now, that day you were telling me about the young man in your father's shop who looked at you and said—

"Selma Peake, if you dare to put that in your book I'll never speak—"

"All right. I won't. But that's what I mean. You see."

Julie Hempel and Selma Peake, both finished products of Miss Flater's school, were both of an age, 19. Selma on the September day, had been spending the afternoon with Julie, and now, adjusting her hat preparatory to leaving, she clapped her hands over her ears to shut out the sounds of Julie's importunings that she stay to supper. Certainly the prospect of the usual Monday evening meal in Mrs. Tebbitt's boarding house (the Tebbitts were momentarily away) did not present sufficient excuse for Selma's refusal. Indeed, the Hempel supper as sketched dish for dish by the urgent Julie brought little greedy groans from Selma.

"It's prairie chicken—three of them—that a farmer west of town brought. Mother fixes them with stuffing, and there's currant jelly. Creamed onions and baked tomatoes. And for dessert, apple roll."

Selma snapped the elastic holding her high-crowned hat under her chin. "Non of hair in the back. She uttered a final and queering groan. "On Monday nights we have cold mutton and cabbage at Mrs. Tebbitt's. This is Monday."

"Well then, silly, why not stay?"

"Father comes home at six. If I'm not there he's disappointed."

Julie, plump, blonde, placid, forsook her soft white blandishments and tried steel against the steel of Selma's decision.

"He leaves you right after supper. And you're alone every night until twelve and after."

"I don't see what that has to do with it," Selma said, stiffly.

Julie's steel, being low-grade, melted at once and ran off her in rivulets. "Of course it hadn't. Selma dear. Only I thought you might leave him just this once."

"If I'm not there he's disappointed. And that terrible Mrs. Tebbitt makes eyes at him. He hates it there."

"Then I don't see why you stay. I never could see. You've been there four months now, and I think it's horrible and stuffy; and o'clock on the stairs."

"Father has had some temporary business setbacks."

Selma's costume testified to that. True, it was modish, and bustled, and bequeathed, and flounced; and her high-crowned short-rimmed hat, with its trimming of feathers and flowers and ribbons had come from New York. But both wire of last spring's purchasing, and this was September.

In the course of the afternoon they had been looking over the pages of Godey's Ladies' Book for that month. The disparity between Selma's costume and the creations pictured there was much as the difference between the Tebbitt meal and that outlined by Julie. Now Julie, fond though defeated, kissed her friend good-bye.

Selma walked quickly the short distance from the Hempel house to Tebbitt's, on North Dearborn Avenue. Up in her room, floor room she took off her hat and called to her father, but he had not yet come in. She was glad of that. She had been fearful of being late. She regarded her hat now with some distaste, decided to rip off the faded roses, did rip a stitch or two, only to discover that the material was more faded than roses, and that the uncovered surface showed up a dark blotch like a wall-spot when a picture, long hanging, is removed. So she got a needle and prepared to tack the offending rose in its accustomed place.

Perched on the arm of a chair near the window, taking quick deft stitches, she heard a sound. She had never heard that sound before—that peculiar sound—the slow, ominous tread of men laden with a heavy inert burden; bearing with infinite care that which was well beyond hurting. Selma had never heard it, she recognized it by one of those pangs, centuries old, called woman's instinct. Thud—shuffle—thud—shuffle—up the narrow stairway, along the passage. She stood up, the needle poised in her hand. The hat fell to the floor. Her eyes were wide, fixed. Her lips slightly parted. The listening look. She knew.

She knew even before she heard the hoarse man's voice saying, "Lift 'er up there a little on the corner, now. Easy—easy." And Mrs. Tebbitt's high shrill clamour: "You can't bring it in there! You hadn't ought to bring it in here like this!" Selma's suspended breath came back. She was panting now. She flung open the door. A flat still burden partially covered with an overcoat carelessly flung over the face. The feet, in their square-toed boots, wobbled listlessly. Selma noticed how shiny the boots were like this put by was very fancy about such things.

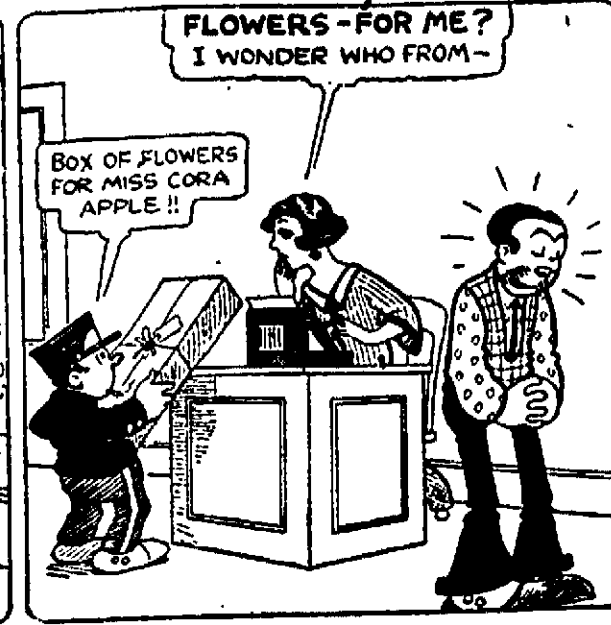

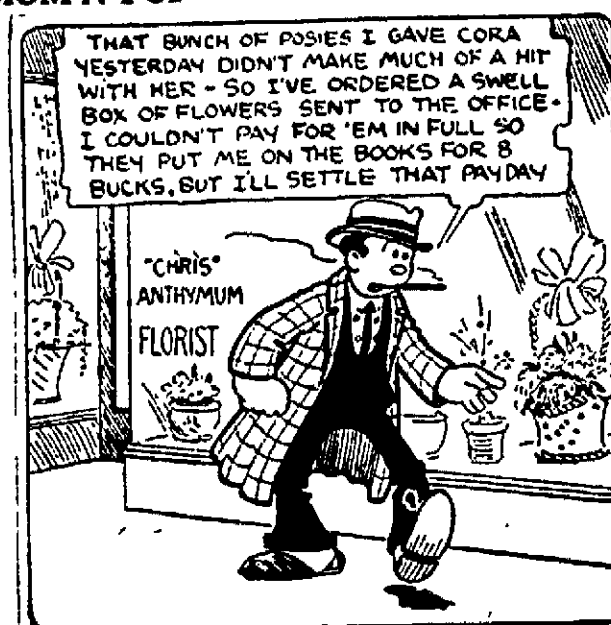

Simeon Peake had been shot in Jeff Hankin's place at five in the afternoon. The irony of it was that the bullet had not been intended for him at all. Its derelict course had been due to feminine aim. Sped by one of those over-dramatic ladies who, armed with horsehair or pistol in tardy defense of their honour, spanked Chicago's dull '80s. In fact, it had been meant for a well-known newspaper publisher usually mentioned in papers other than his own as a bon vivant. The lady's lead, on remembrance was to have been proof of the fact that he had been more vivacious than bon.

It was, perhaps, because of this that the matter was pretty well hushed up. The publisher's paper—which was Chicago's foremost—scarcely mentioned the incident and purposely mispelled the name. The lady, thinking her task accomplished, had taken truer aim with her second bullet, and had saved herself the trouble of trial by human jury.

Simeon Peake left his daughter Selma a legacy of two fine clear blue-white diamonds (he had had the gambler's love of them) and the sum of four hundred and ninety-seven dollars in cash. Just how he had managed to have a sum like this put by was a mystery. The envelope containing it had evidently once held a larger sum. It had been sealed, and then slit. On the outside was written, in Simeon Peake's fine, almost feminine hand: "For my little daughter Selma Peake in case anything should happen to me." It bore a date seven years old. What the original sum had had been no one ever knew. That any sum remained was evidence of the almost heroic self-control practiced by one to whom money—ready money in any sum at all—meant only fuel to feed the flames of his gaming fever.

Don't Make Your Sewing Pickup Job

Grouping of Garments of One Kind Helps Speed Work to Completion

Have you tried bunching your sewing? Grouping the garments that can be made at one time, not puckering the seams or wadding the gatherings.

Of course, pecking away at sewing, piece by piece, is all right, if sewing is a pleasure job with you—a pleasant pastime when your friends drop in for a half hour's chat. But if you want to make a clean sweep, get the sewing basket and the machine and all the rest of it out from under your nose before house-cleaning time—bunch the work. Count up how many rompers, for instance, Johnny needs, double up, triple up, or six up the cutting and use one pattern.

This need not cramp the style, either. Use many materials as there are rompers, if you like. By trimming this one with a gay binding and pussy-cat pocket, and that one with a fold or plique and a band of cross-stitch, or one of the colorful narrow bandings that come already embroidered, they will look like individual designs.

USE HEAVY SHEARS
If the materials are medium weight you will find that you can cut through as many as six thicknesses without difficulty. To be sure, there is a trick in handling the shears. You will note that I say shears, cut with the point, and keep the points on the table. Of course, if the materials are bulky it is not advisable to cut through more than three pieces at one time.

When you are planning to double up or triple up or six up the cutting you need a complete pattern. You know, in a tissue-paper pattern you receive half a front, half a back, etc. This works perfectly when you are cutting just one garment at a time. You can fold the goods through the center and place the center-front and center-back on the fold. Here you are cutting through two thicknesses. You couldn't cut more than two or three garments at once if they were stacked one on the other, and each piece of goods folded through the center. If you double your pattern before you start—that is, make it complete—the material for each romper can be spread out in a single thickness and you can cut out as many as you want. The complete pattern will not be confusing if you mark the left and right sides and keep the marked sides up in placing the pattern on the goods.

WRONG SIDE UP
Stack the materials for the rompers one on top of the other, with wrong sides up, edges even and all wrinkles smoothed out. Place the pattern on the top piece and weight it down with paper weights or books, and mark around it with a soft lead pencil. Then remove the pattern and cut just outside the pencil marks, using sharp, heavy shears and cutting with the points.

This same scheme can be used for your own underwear, work dresses, and even the children's dressier frocks and suits.

Of course, the basic style you are using must be one that is adaptable to many trimmings and is in itself satisfactory, one that meets the requirements of easy making and fitting, one that can be slipped on quickly.

FASHION HINTS

COLORED HATS

Milliners say that despite the fact that colored hats are shown it is difficult to get the average woman to wear them, that she prefers black or a combination of black and white.

NEW TURBANS

The newest turbans of draped silk or crepe frequently have wide scarfs that drape about the neck.

HAT FLOWERS

Daffodils in natural colors are shown on the new spring hats and they give a delightful feeling of spring.

NECK SCARF

Whether she wears a tall collar, a straightened frock or a long coat, the stylish maid of this season wears a silk neck scarf.

FAVORITE GLOVE

The gauntlet glove with an ornate cuff that pulls over the hand is probably the best seller among gloves.

MOIRE HATS

Moire hats are newer than felts, satin or straw and are capable of being worn with almost any type of frock.

BLACK CAPES

The new black silk capes that look so demure and practical when viewed on the model, frequently have linings of white silk with very large red flowers in all-over or border designs.

BUCKLES TO MATCH

Slipper buckles of rhinestones or cut steel frequently match the buckle worn on the hat.

BLACK HOSE STYLISH

Although most well dressed women have been converted to light stockings, black ones are said to be creeping back into favor—particularly very thin ones.

HOUSEKEEPING IS CAREER

Men Folks Overlook Fact, Says Writer

THAT IS LACKING DUE CREDIT

New York — Housekeeping and home-making is as much a career as writing, painting or any other sort of endeavor outside of the home. And Miss Ruth Cross, fast coming up as a successful author, declares it is time to give credit where credit is due.

"Today," she says, "we feel that a woman who isn't trying to do three or four other things besides being a wife and a mother and keeping a home, is falling back in the procession."

"And it's all wrong. If a woman is called upon to attend to the numerous details that come up in a day with the average housekeeper, she has enough to do without anything more. And she should be regarded as just as much an executive as the woman who runs an office or performs on the stage."

"Men have made it much easier for men to create and do big things in the world, by showing all the little jobs, and the big one of housekeeping, on the women. The great majority of women prefer housekeeping and homemaking to other careers, but they get little credit for it."

MISS RUTH CROSS

But, what if a woman desires both home life and career? Miss Cross was asked.

"That's another problem," she replied. "Perhaps, in the future, we will understand why a man and woman, both working at professions, may be happier living apart, after the fashion of Fanny Hurst and her husband, or taking a year's vacation from each other, like Thyra Samter Winslow and her husband."

"It is truly a big problem, this one of adjusting home life and career, if a woman must have both."

Miss Cross recently came into New York from Texas with a novel and some plays and short stories in her trunk, all of which she had sold within a week of her arrival here. Her first novel, "The Golden Cocoon," has just been published.

Asked how she did it, she replied: "It isn't my first trip. I came here a few years ago, lived in an attic, got manuscripts back on every man, and had all the trials of a beginner. Then I went back home and dug for a few years and came back with a different supply."

Beauty And Grace May Be Achieved By Imitating Nature

Women Should Beware of City with Its Straight Lines, Sharp Angles and Squares, Says Instructor in Dancing.

San Francisco—If you would be graceful, beware of the city.

For the city is the greatest enemy of feminine form and charm.

This is the warning and charge issued by Miss Agnes Kaldman Rush, teacher of artistic dancing and lecturer on gracefulness for women.

"Woman's grace lies in curves," says Miss Rush. "But the modern city is all straight lines, sharp angles and squares."

Being imitative, our tendency is to follow that which we see most of—the city. Unknowingly we more and more pattern ourselves upon its plan of ungraceful lines and angles.

"American women of the pioneer days lived right with nature. It was from their surroundings that they acquired their poise, and naturally it was graceful, patterned as it was upon curving grasses, gently rounded trees, the light movement of the butterfly."

"It is to such models as these that we must look for salvation from ungainliness."

"But merely to bend like a tree is not enough. A woman must bend like a tree because, like a tree, she is a thing of curves, and curves bend gently, gracefully."

Miss Rush cites, as examples of exercises which will restore grace, the swaying trees, the poppy moving in the breeze, the caterpillar slowly creeping onward, the water lily floating upon the ripples of a pond.

She explains them as follows:

POPPY EXERCISE

Stand in an erect but relaxed (not strained) position, with heels together and feet placed naturally. Then think of your head as a heavy poppy head and drop it forward slowly until the chin touches the chest. Now the wind starts to blow gently, and sways the head toward the right, while the neck does not turn, and so on around a complete circle. The body follows, as the poppy stem follows, only so much as necessary to allow a graceful swaying of the head. This should be done six times and then repeated with head swaying in the opposite direction.

Still thinking of the poppy, imagine the wind blowing more strongly, until it has swayed the head and part of the stem, the bend of the stem being represented by the empire waist line. Then sway as before.

Now the wind is blowing strongly from a point in back of you. It blows you forward at the waist; the heads hang naturally and loosely as nearly straight down as possible; the arms fall forward limply. For this exercise the feet must be about a foot apart. Then repeat the rotary motion, shifting the weight and bending the knees slightly as the weight shifts from side to side.

CATERPILLAR EXERCISE

First, think of a striped caterpillar, lazily basking in the sunshine, with nothing to worry him. He is in the raised position which caterpillars take when they wish to look around. So you stand upright but relaxed. Now visualize the vertebrae of your spinal column as corresponding with the rings of the caterpillar. You start down from your upright position, the first vertebrae (in your neck) opens as your head drops forward. Then you bend at the next vertebrae, and so on until all are open. As you do this allow your head to fall forward of their own weight and hang thus. And remember, never strive for a right angle; the back should always be rounded. This exercise should be done very slowly and with a continuous and even motion. Reverse the motion to straighten up and repeat about six times each way.

WATER LILY EXERCISE

Think of yourself as in a pond, your arms out in a curve which will bring the hands almost to level of shoulders. Then, as a ripple reaches you, you are gently lifted (rising slowly on toes) and your arms are floated upward several inches, slowly and sinuously. Now the water recedes and you sink down until knees are well bent. At the same time your arms float lower.

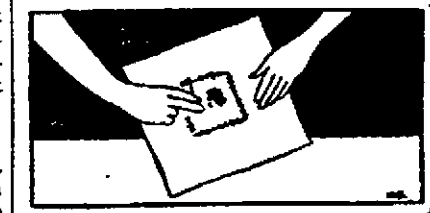

If you want to try these exercises to music, Miss Rush suggests the following:

For the poppy exercise, "Shepherd's Hey" For the caterpillar exercise McDowell's "To a Wild Rose," The swaying willow Schumann's "Traumerei," The water lily Brahms' Opus 39, No. 1 waltz.

Household Suggestions

DARNING

To darn small holes in linen or lawn, baste the hole firmly over waxed linen, then with a fine needle and ratting of the same stuff go back and forth and weave the stitches close together.

TO CLEAN MATTING

To clean matting, sweep it twice, first with a stiff broom and then with a softer one dipped in warm water and shaken as dry as possible.

CLEANING BRASS

Unlacquered brass can be cleaned by washing in warm, not hot, water, then rubbing with salt and vinegar.

PIE PASTE

Materials for pie paste should be very cold to start with and, when the paste is mixed, it should be chilled again before rolling it out to insure flakiness.

Good Manners

LADY PAYS OWN WAY

It often happens that a gentleman and a lady of acquaintance get on the same train. When the meeting is by accident the lady should pay for every item of her journey.

Towel On Board Will Prevent Sticky Dough

When rolling out doughnuts or cookies, place two thicknesses of smooth towel over the board and proceed as usual. Flour the towel as you would the board. You will find that this prevents the dough from sticking.

If boiled eggs should get mixed with raw ones, it is easy to separate them by spinning them with your fingers. A raw egg will not spin, while a cooked one will whirl like a top.

For savory sandwich fillings—in an emergency—try mashing together oil sardines and hard-boiled eggs. Use beatrices to reduce the mixture to a consistency for spreading and to add pink color.

When whipping cream, if you add about seven drops of lemon-juice to a pint of cream it will beat up firm in about half the time otherwise required.

Asparagus should always be cooked without a cover on the utensil which holds it. This also applies to green peas, the reason being that the color is well preserved in this way.

If you haven't a bread-board, the following is a good substitute. Wash and then starch a good-sized flour sack in thick cooked starch. Then dip in raw celluloid starch. Roll tightly in a dry cloth. When sack is almost dry, iron, folding the sack together, which makes four plies—and is very stiff. It can be laundered very easily.

To be comfortable while taking a hot drink, place one glass inside another. The top one containing the liquid will get uncomfortably hot, but the lower one will remain cool and will not burn your hands—From The Designer Magazine.

Hat Stands Make Good Drop Light

That a drop-light for your dressing-table can be devised out of the hat-stands supplied at any millinery store? The electric cord may be run up through the center and attached to the socket.

That old shutters can be used to make a screen of whatever size you wish? Remove the sashes, attach the shutters with hinges and coat with enamel. Sections of bright chintz are then attached with gimp.

To make a clothes-hamper out of a fruit-crate? Cut corners ten inches longer than the hamper, make casings at the bottom and ten inches and two and a half inches from the top. Thread with elastic, attaching with large snaps.

That you can make a swing seat out of a discarded buggy seat and two chains or stout ropes? Paint brown or black, attach to each end pockets of burlap or grain sacking. A washable cover, made of two flour sacks prettily dyed or stenciled, gives a fresh appearance.

To cut a foundation for a valance out of a thin strip of board with the new of a drape? Paint it the prettiest, insulating tone of the room. With the addition of a strip of cretonne it makes a delightful window decoration.—From The Designer Magazine.

Adventures Of The Twins

LONGTAIL, THE MOUSE

Into the drain chased Paddyfoot Purr with the Twins on his back. Paddyfoot Purr was the big cat belonging to the king and queen of Beanstalk Land. He had suddenly spied a mouse when he was giving Nancy and Nick a ride.

"Oh," cried Nancy. "It's as dark as night! Where are we going?" But Paddyfoot was too busy running to answer. On they flew, on and on, and on, and all they could hear was the squealing of the poor mouse just a jump or two ahead.

But suddenly some water came rushing through the drain and Paddyfoot had to swim hard to keep himself from drowning.

"Ugh! I hate water," he cried, paddling for dear life. "I wish I'd never seen that mouse. I shall get back and get the herring the cook left for."

So saying, he turned and was swimming back to dry land and daylight, when another rush of water came swishing by and washed Nancy and Nick off his back.

I don't know what would have happened had they not had the magic green shoes which had helped them climb to Beanstalk. But it was, it was, they swam around and around in the dark, shouting for somebody to save them. Presently they heard a splashing nearby, and a strange voice asking, "Who are you? And where are you going?"

"We're Nancy and Nick, the Twins," called Nick. "Please save us."

"You are not cats, are you?" came the voice again.

"No no! We're a girl and boy. Do please come and get us and take us out of here," begged Nancy.

"People!" exclaimed the voice again. "They are worse than cats. No, no, I can't save you. I am Longtail, the mouse. People step on us. I don't dare let you out."

But we're so little, we couldn't jump," said Nick. "We aren't half as big as one of Paddyfoot's paws. You are a hundred times bigger than we are."

"Well, I declare!" said Longtail in surprise. "Then I'll save you. It's very dark and I can't see you, but when I wish my tail around, catch

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW, MRS. JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON

DEAR MOTHER:

I hope you will allow me to wish you the pleasantest of journeys on your trip abroad.

I know you are going to be filled with pride when you see Alice driving away for her presentation at court. I sometimes wonder if Leslie has any regret in the loss of all these privileges and festivities. She however seems perfectly satisfied to be a poor man's wife, especially since we adopted the baby.

Leslie wrote me that Mr. Hamilton is much taken with him. Of course that makes her very happy and I am extremely glad that you have taken the kiddie to your hearts, especially as my mother has not been so kind about it. She seems to think that because I gave him the name of John Alden Prescott I have done something very terrible, but I tell Leslie she is very old-fashioned and we will have to forgive her.

I hope you will bring back the governor in perfect health and again please let me say that you have all my good wishes for a pleasant journey and a safe return.

Affectionately, your son, JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT.

Letter From Leslie Prescott to John Alden Prescott

That was a sweet letter, dearest you wrote to mother. Almost sweet enough to make up to me for not getting one myself.

hold of it and climb up on my back and I'll take you out of the drain and show you where there is some lovely cheese.

So he gripped his long tail around and the Twins caught hold of it and climbed upon the mouse's back.

It all happened in a second. "Now, then, out we go!" cried the mouse, starting to swim hard. "Do you know where Paddyfoot went?"

"Back to the palace kitchen to get his herring," said Nancy.

"Good! Then I'll swim the other way. The drain ends under the gardener's cottage. Yesterday he put a queer looking object down in his cellar with the loveliest piece of cheese in it. I'm not selfish, so I'll divide."

All the time the mouse was talking and swimming and swimming they came to the end of the drain and crawled out of a hole to a dry place. The Twins jumped off Longtail's back.

"Oh, thank you for saving us," said Nick gratefully. "Maybe we can do the same for you some time."
